Hospital Administrator

Walter F. Doud, Harrisburg, who next Tuesday will take up his duties as administrator of the Warner hospital, a newly-created position. He will have general charge of the management of the hospital. A veteran of four years of service in World War II, Mr. Doud's election by the hospital board was announced a week ago. He was in Gettysburg Thursday to confer with hospital authorities.

HIGH GRAD IS FEATURED IN COMING MOVIE

Paul Newell Campbell, who in 1939 was starring in Gettysburg high school stage productions, has the romantic lead in a motion picture to be presented at the Majestic theatre here next Thursday. The picture is entitled "Millie's Daughter."

Campbell, a son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Campbell, now of Arlington, Va., and formerly of near Gettysburg, was an operetta star on Broadway before joining Columbia pictures for a movie career.

When Campbell, known to the class of 1939 by the nickname of "Soupy" according to "The Cannon-Aid," Gettysburg high school yearbook of that year, attended school here, his family resided on a farm along the Baltimore road. They lived in this section about eight years.

After graduating from Gettysburg high school Campbell attended Grove City college, graduating in 1943. He then went on the stage in New York until last year when he was signed by the Hollywood picture company.

In School Plays

While in high school Campbell took part in the "Pirates of Penzance," "The Family Upstairs," "The Adorable Spendthrift" and "In Old St. Louis," all student productions. He was a member of the Mask and Wig, yearbook staff for music, "Maroon and White," dramatic club, the high school chorus, band and orchestra and the A cappella choir.

Despite Campbell's great interest in music while at the high school here and his work in Broadway operettas, he made one stipulation when he signed with Columbia, that he was to launch his movie career in straight acting parts, rather than as a singer.

According to a news story from Hollywood Campbell asked that he not be given singing roles "because of the experience of actor Walter Pidgeon." Campbell is said to have pointed out that Pidgeon was starred as a singer and then dropped out of sight until he could convince movie heads that he was an actor also.

Miss Mildred Tomblor, now an assistant home economics representative in Schuylkill county, was elected as home economics extension representative for Adams county to succeed Mrs. Ward Houck, whose resignation from the local post after ten years here is effective Monday. Miss Tomblor was recommended to the board Friday evening by Miss Lydia Tarrant, head of the home economics extension work at State college. The new representative will start her duties during the latter part of April, the executive committee learned.

Report On Work

More and more county farmers are paying special attention to soil conservation measures, County Agent M. T. Hartman told the committee during a review of the past year's work and the outlook for extension activities during the coming year.

Reports were presented on the county office's agricultural work by both County Agent Hartman and Assistant Agent Ira N. Dunmire. Dunmire reported that the number of farmers in the Dairy Herd Improvement association has now increased to the point where a second cow tester is necessary. Ervin Baker, East Berlin, has been appointed as a part time tester to assist the regular tester and will begin his duties as soon as equipment is available.

Dunmire reported increased interest in the possibility of establishing an artificial insemination cooperative among dairy herd owners in the county. He also reported on progress made in drainage work on

General Wei Of Chinese Military Council Looks To U. S. For Future Peace

General Wei Li-Huang, a member of the National Military Council of the republic of China of which Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek is chairman, came to Gettysburg Friday afternoon to tour the Battlefield of Gettysburg. A disciple of Dr. Sun Yat-sen founder of the Chinese republic, he has participated in every major military campaign since 1911 in defense of his country. He came to Gettysburg to study and make note of the offensive and defensive tactics of the opposing armies in the three days' Battle of Gettysburg.

Relaxing in a comfortable lounging chair in the parlor of the Hotel Gettysburg, Friday evening, General Wei told a reporter for The Gettysburg Times of the purpose of his visit to the United States as a guest of the United States government, his impressions of this country and the hospitality of the American people.

Four-Star General

The General was wearing a khaki uniform, of the heavy woolen type. His tunic was of the old loose-type neck choker. The insignia on the brass buttons were not discernible. Across his left breast he wore a string of service bars. On the collar of his tunic were Chinese symbols in brass denoting that he was a four-star General. His trousers were neatly pressed and his oxford high-top shoes were polished. He had a round fat face, short cropped black hair. He was clearly shaven and he beamed jovially throughout the interview.

Mrs. Wei joined the party about fifteen minutes after the interview started. Chung An-Min, the General's secretary, acted as the interpreter until Mrs. Wei arrived, then he excused himself and returned about fifteen minutes later.

Gracious Interpreter

The General's wife, who studied at the Peabody Conservatory of Music in Baltimore, was a very gracious and congenial interpreter. She wore a blue silk, silver brocade dress, knee length, close fitting at the neck. On her right wrist she wore a diamond studded wrist watch. She wore low heel, heavy soled pumps, flesh colored stockings and her hair was in an up-do fashion. She was the embodiment of courtesy, gentleness and courtesousness. She gave every indication that she was enjoying the interview and she was most cooperative. She was patient personified as was her distinguished husband and he, in return, seemed to want to demonstrate his democratic responsiveness to her gentility.

The interview was originally scheduled for twenty minutes. It lasted more than an hour. Throughout the conference Mrs. Wei smiled continuously and beamed pleasantly first upon her husband and then upon The Times reporter. She gave every evidence of thoroughly enjoying the question-and-answer session. She even hesitated to withdraw when The Times reporter concluded his questioning after "overstaying" his leave.

Enjoys Interview

On several instances Mrs. Wei referred the General's answers to the military leader's secretary, who most graciously translated the answers. The General does not understand or speak English. When The Times reporter put the questions to him he looked directly at the reporter, nodded his head on occasions as though he understood. Then when Mrs. Wei or his secretary translated the English query to him he would look directly at them, smile, or nod, and then respond without hesitation.

He said that he was flattered that a reporter from The Times paid him an official visit . . . that he

Tiny, Individual Helicopter Promises New Flying Era

By DON WILLIAMS

Philadelphia, March 29 (AP) — An individual helicopter, which promises a new flying era for business, pleasure and public service was disclosed here by Horace T. Pentecost, president of Hoppi-Copters, Inc., of Seattle, Wash.

Pentecost described the development of the novel craft at the third annual forum of the American Helicopter society yesterday.

Without benefit of conventional body, landing gear or instruments, the individual helicopter will fly straight up or down, forward, side-ward or backward; hover motionless above the ground or rotate about its own vertical axis, a company announcement said. It will "windmill" to a safe, light power-off landing in case of engine failure.

Its small size, the company said in an announcement, enabled it to land or take off in a cleared area as little as 30 feet square, and it brings safe, low cost flying within reach of all.

Pentecost told members of the society that the individual helicopter is a successor to "our original strictly military backstrap model" on which active development was discontinued with the end of the war. The end of the war, he added, halted development of the backstrap model in its research stages.

"The individual helicopter necessitates an extremely simple control means," Pentecost said, "and for this reason all of the required blade adjustments to render typical three dimensional helicopter flight have been coordinated into a single control handle and placed conveniently in front of the operator."

"Flight performance," Pentecost said, will simulate the present larger helicopters of equivalent power and blade loadings at its maximum limits of approximately 12,000 feet service ceiling and its top speed of approximately 90 miles an hour. Its range will be in keeping with the average operator's fatigue limit x x x, and probably would not exceed one hour.

"Cost analyses have been based on large scale quantity production and, due to its inherent simplicity, the Hoppi-Copter should retail for little more than the better modern motorcycle."

JUNIOR POLICE GET $150 GIFT FROM EAGLES

A campaign by the Gettysburg Junior Police to raise $500 with which to purchase baseball and other equipment for the summer's recreational program, got off to a flying start Friday night, when the Gettysburg Aerie No. 1562, Fraternal Order of Eagles voted $150 to the fund.

It was the initial contribution made to the fund, Borough Police Officer Albert L. Wolford, advisor to the junior police, said other organizations and groups would be given the opportunity to contribute.

A letter to the Eagles explained that the police department was interested in preventing juvenile delinquency and was sponsoring junior baseball teams here this summer. The letter explained that the youngsters were in need of funds with which to obtain equipment.

Give $50 to Red Cross

The plan, Wolford explained, was the backing of the court, attorneys, doctors and many leading merchants, as well as others interested in this recreational program. It is designed to reach every boy and girl in Gettysburg.

The junior police have obtained the use of the Codori lot in the northeast section of the city for a baseball diamond. The fire company has volunteered its services in burning off the weeds and a bulldozer has been donated to put the lot in shape, Wolford said.

The donation of $150 by the Eagles Friday night was made on recommendation of its committee on civic affairs and donations. The aerie also voted $50 to the current Red Cross drive.

A donation of $15 was given to the Emergency hospital, Frederick, together with 80 cans of food and other articles of food. It was reported that $5 was given to the Red Cross. A letter from Emergency hospital was read thanking the club for its generosity. Miss Louise Sebald, substituting for the director, read articles which had been published about the Federal meeting held in Frederick March 20. Twelve members from the Emmitsburg club were present. Every year the club members exchange plants. This will take place at the next regular meeting which will be held April 24. It was announced the club has adopted a French family together with two other clubs of the county.

The next afternoon of games held by the club will be on April 10 at the home of Mrs. Harry Boyle.

NO CHANGE IN MART PRICES

Prices remained practically unchanged on the Farmers' market today. Eggs, in greater demand just before Easter, remained at last week's levels, large whites selling at 54 cents.

A few bunches of pussy willows were on sale on the market today, at 20 cents a bunch. Horsesradish was offered at 25 and 30 cents a jar.

Roasting chickens were still 60 cents a pound, and fryers and capons brought 65 cents. Pork was scarce, but some available, at 70 to 75 cents a pound for pork chops, 50 cents for sausage meat, 60 cents for backbone roasts, 45 cents for spareribs and 65 cents for cured bacon.

Apples were in fair supply, with the price remaining unchanged. They sold for $3 a bushel, some higher, and 45 to 60 cents a half peck. Potatoes were $2 a bushel, 20 cents a quarter peck and 35 cents a half peck.

Sauerkraut was 35 cents a quart, vinegar 70 cents a gallon, turnips and onions ten cents a quart measure, sweet cream 35 cents a pint, potato salad 20 cents a pint and cottage cheese 20 cents a pint. Pies were 40 cents each.

STATE POLICE HAVE NO CLUES TO MURDERER

State police today continued their search for the murderer of Herbert L. Humphert, 70-year-old Gardners R. 2 farmer, whose lifeless and badly battered body was found Wednesday. They said they might be six months in finding out who committed the crime.

While hoping for a "break" in the case soon, Detective R. O. Parsons and Cpl. Lodwick Jenkins said that so far no definite motive had been established for the murder and "as it stands now anybody within a hundred miles might have committed the crime."

Looking For Man

One of the things the officers are fairly certain—they do not believe that the crime could have been committed by a woman.

Pointing to the condition in which the man's body was found, his badly battered head, which contained 17 cuts, four of them deep enough to penetrate to the skull, and his battered face, the officers held that "from all appearances the crime was committed by a man."

Humphert's hands were bruised and cut and from all appearances the cuts may have been caused by his striking his assailant. Judging from the depth of the cuts on his hands, the blows the spry elderly man struck were such that only a fairly strong man could have stood up under them, police pointed out.

Funeral Today

The police said they have not had reports as yet from chemists who are examining blood spots about the barn and the contents of material under Humphert's fingernails which were sent to Harrisburg for examination.

Funeral services for Humphert were to be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Routsong funeral home, Bendersville, with the Rev. P. J. Horick officiating. Interment will be made in the Goodyear cemetery. The pallbearers will be Hiram and Raymond Rex, Harry Weidner, Robert Young, Arthur Starner and Sterling Shaffer.

TWO TRIED BY JUNIOR POLICE

One hundred and ten grade school boys and girls attended Friday evening's meeting of the junior police club at the Lincoln school, and three cases were taken up in the junior "court."

Two of the youngsters were "charged" with "catching rides" on freight trains on the Western Maryland railroad. The club has its own judge, prosecutor, defense attorneys and other court officials and imposes "sentences."

Candidates for the junior police baseball teams were measured for uniforms which were ordered today. An inventory was also taken of all baseball equipment, to determine how much will be needed.

The club has appealed to older persons who have baseball gloves, bats, etc., which they are no longer using, to donate them to the teams. Contributions are being sought from various organizations in Gettysburg to pay for the uniforms and equipment which will have to be bought.

DIVORCE HAS MOUNTED IN GREAT BRITAIN

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

England's discursive afternoon tea-tables have been served a warm morsel by the Bishop of London who declared in the House of Lords during a debate on the looming divorce rate that adultery needn't constitute grounds for divorce. He recommended forgiveness and reconciliation.

The austere upper chamber of parliament has little legislative power these days but it is a highly important sounding-board for considered opinion. So when a great dignitary like the bishop makes a pronouncement of such universal interest, it sets folk to thinking and tongues to wagging. And he was very blunt in his approach.

"It is extraordinary," he asserted, "that at a time when adultery is thought less of than it has been for centuries in this country, and when living in sin is considered as a music-hall joke, adultery is considered a sufficient excuse for breaking up a marriage and a home."

Divorce Rate Rockets

The origin of this debate lies in the fact that the divorce rate has jumped from 6,332 in 1939 (the year the war began) to 50,000 currently—a shocking state of affairs in the minds of a host of Britons who still maintain their Victorian reserve along with the cherished China dogs and aspidochelons.

One hastens to add that this increase in divorces doesn't mean that John Bull is racing headlong to the devil. It does mean that the separations due to war have resulted in a good deal of infidelity on both sides of the house. And the atomic age has revealed what the Victorian age used to conceal.

I investigated this divorce problem when in England a year ago and it was clear that the increase in divorces represented the opening of the floodgates to an accumulation of grievances between the soldier overseas and his missus back home. As remarked before, there was a lot of infidelity on both sides of the house, and both sides were pretty sore.

Mistress Was Condoned

So far as Tommy Atkins is concerned, he has precedent for sowing a few wild oats. When I first went to Britain as a reporter in 1916 the law conceded an Englishman the right to have a mistress if he so chose. He could divorce his wife for infidelity, but she couldn't divorce him on that ground. She had to prove actual physical cruelty in addition to adultery. One of my first introductions to this code was when a big business man remarked to me:

"I have a prosperous business, a fine home, a charming wife to preside over my table, two lovely children. And I have my mistress. What more could a man want?"

What more, indeed? Well, it wasn't until 1923 that a law was passed giving a wife the right to divorce her husband for infidelity alone. Even then the women moved slowly in taking advantage of this privilege. Apart from religious objections, divorce had always been looked upon as a disgrace.

During the war and since it ended, Welfare societies have been doing yeomen's work in ironing out the differences between soldiers and the wives they left behind them. The "forgiveness" and "reconciliation" which the bishop of London advocates has been achieved in innumerable cases.

Still, England is shocked and bewildered by such a flood, as witness the fact that the British government is studying ways and means of further relieving the situation, and the reserved House of Lords is taking a hand.

LONG SHOT IS AINTREE WINNER

Aintree, England, March 29

(AP) — Ticket holders on Caughoo, winner of the Grand National steeplechase today, and Jockey Treble, winner of the Lincolnshire, both of which were 100 to 1 shots, won 8,899½ pounds ($35,598) on each two shilling (40 cent) ticket in the annual "spring betting double."

Aintree, England, March 29 (AP) — Caughoo won the 103rd running of the Grand National steeplechase today. Lough Conn was second. Kami was third as the favored Prince Regent finished out of the money. Prince Regent finished fourth.

Caughoo is an eight-year old Irish horse and was listed as a rank outsider at 100 to 1 in the overnight odds. He is owned by J. J. McDowell of Ireland and was ridden by E. Dempsey. He was one of the lightweights in the field of 57 — largest in 18 years — under 140 pounds.

Caughoo won by 20 lengths. He did not receive a call all the way on the two swings around the 4-mile, 856-yard course, and came out of the clouds to overhaul the leaders. Lough Conn had led most of the way.

Last year's winner, Lovely Cottage, had been a last-minute scratch because of the heavy footing. It was raining throughout the race, but in spite of the weather, a crowd expected to hit the 250,000 mark was on hand.

General Wei

never suspected that a small town like Gettysburg would have a daily newspaper and that a representative would "bother to call on him."

Throughout the interview General Wei accepted and smoked American made cigarettes. He laughed frequently. He beamed and chuckled at some of the questions which he called "off the record" and then "thanked the The Gettysburg Times reporter for calling on me."

At the outbreak of the Sino-Japanese war in 1937 he was appointed Commander-in-Chief of the First War Zone in northern China and commanded a force of one million regulars and 500,000 guerrillas in seven full provinces and parts of two others. In five years he stopped the Japs on fourteen occasions when they tried to cross the Yellow river. He once defeated General Itagaki's army of 200,000 crack troops. At the Japanese war trials in Tokyo recently he saw his adversary in the prisoner's docks.

EX-WAC FOUND GUILTY OF FIRST DEGREE MURDER

Philadelphia, March 29 (AP) — A jury of eight women and four men convicted Mrs. Carolyn Kaniuk, a comely 27-year-old former Wac, of first degree murder in the strangling of Paul de Genovario in a Philadelphia hotel room and recommended a sentence of life imprisonment.

The verdict was returned late last night after five hours deliberation. Sentence was deferred when the defense filed a motion for a new trial. Mrs. Kaniuk was visibly moved by the verdict. She burst into tears, sobbed steadily and was still weeping as attendants led her from the courtroom.

Widow Objects

The wife of the man she was charged with killing was not satisfied with the verdict.

In a voice that reverberated through the hushed courtroom, she shouted: "The sentence should be a life for a life—she took the children's father away." Four of five children were beside her.

The fifth was barred from the courtroom when she screamed "lie" to testimony by the ex-Wac that she fought di Genovario while resisting an attack.

During the three-day trial, Mrs. Kaniuk testified she remembered having hold of di Genovario's necktie in the hotel room January 26 but said she had no recollection of strangling him after a round of drinking spots.

The commonwealth demanded a first degree verdict but not necessarily death in the electric chair.

NO MEN ABOARD TANKER'S RAFT

Honolulu, March 29 (AP)—The missing lifeboat from the broken tanker Fort Dearborn was found last night by the steamship China Victory, but there was no sign of the 12 men who disappeared with it on the stormy night of March 12.

The China Victory, en route from the Philippines to San Francisco, radioed the Hawaiian sea frontier that Fort Dearborn Motor Lifeboat No. 3 was found drifting bottom-up 665 miles northeast of Midway island. "Boat badly damaged. Propeller gone from shaft. No sign of life," China Victory radioed.

The 12 men who launched the lifeboat minutes after tanker cracked in half were the only crewmen unaccounted for. Thirty-two men were rescued from the bow and stern sections by naval and merchant ships.

An extensive search of vast areas of the central Pacific was made for the lifeboat by navy planes, a cruiser and 15 destroyers.

The 10,448-ton Fort Dearborn split without warning 1,100 miles west of Honolulu while enroute to Shanghai from San Francisco. Ten men were rescued from the bow section two days later, but 22 crewmen on the stern were not taken off until March 17, after abandoning efforts to bring the half-skip into Honolulu under its own power.

WILL IS PROBATED

The will of Carrie B. Hankey, late of Hamilton township, has been entered for probate at the office of the county register and recorder, Howard Hankey, New Oxford R. 1, is listed as executor.

Warsaw, March 28 (Delayed) (AP)—Polish radio officials said today that Gen. Karl Swierczewski, vice minister of national defense, had been killed somewhere in southeastern Poland.

The officials said the "UPA was suspected." UPA stands for an organization of Ukrainian nationalists.

Authorities said the Ukrainian nationalists, resentful of their expulsion from Polish territory to Russia under the Polish-Soviet repatriation agreement, had been crossing the frontier at night, attacking the Polish militia in various villages.

GEN. BRADLEY WANTS TO GET BACK TO ARMY

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, March 29 (AP)—Running the Veterans Administration is a big job, and a tough one. Because it's tough and getting bigger, President Truman more than a year ago borrowed General Omar Bradley from the army to run VA.

How does he like the job? Apparently, not much. He wants to get back to the army as soon as he can. But before listening to what he says about it, here are some of the VA problems.

The VA operates the veterans' hospitals, educates and trains them, gives them loans to buy homes, and handles their insurance. There are billions of details mixed up in that.

Has Huge Task

At this time there are 18,300,000 veterans of World War II and there were eligible for veterans' benefits of one kind or another.

VA is paying for the schooling of 1,700,000 veterans now in 10,000 separate schools and colleges. Another 720,000 are training in 358,000 job-training places.

In January alone VA received 12,927,522 separate pieces of mail; its 4,000 contact representatives held 2,394,786 personal conferences with veterans in VA offices; they answered 955,840 telephone calls for information; they prepared 443,733 pieces of correspondence; and they assisted veterans in filling out 928,727 application forms for benefits.

Asked For Funds

General Bradley went up to Congress to ask the House appropriations committee for more money to keep the VA going.

The chairman, Rep. Taber, New York Republican, is very economy-minded and has been very eager to cut down the number of government employees. Mindful of this, General Bradley had sent out a telegram to all VA branches to keep down expenses and not to hire any more people.

He read Taber a letter from one of the doctors running a veterans hospital, saying his people were in "panic" because of this order.

The general read the letter. Taber didn't like it. He told Bradley he was "almost of the opinion" that Bradley resented the idea of any cuts in the VA.

Gave Him Both Barrels

Bradley told him that wasn't his attitude, and then he cut loose with both barrels on Taber. The general said:

"I am not trying to build this up. I did not ask for this job. I only took it because I was asked to do so and I am trying to do the best I can until I can be replaced, which I hope will be as soon as possible, because it is a thankless job no matter how done, and I am just trying to make the best of it and doing the best I can to carry out what I think Congress intended."

The letter he had read was a scorching. It was from Dr. Karl A. Menninger, who's running the VA hospital at Topeka, Kansas. After relating his great trouble in getting doctors to work for the government at all, he said the doctors now are saying: "It is time for us to get out of this and into private practice and let the VA revert to the mediocre type of medical care it used to have."

Slaps At Politics

Then Dr. Menninger told Bradley in the letter: "We all realize that this is not your idea but that your hand is being forced and that certain members of Congress think that this is just a political item."

"But they should know that there are many of who are not politicians and not disposed to submit to political maneuvers. I came into this thing because I saw the possibility of developing a great thing for the veterans and the nation. x x x

"But I and many others like me will drop it like a hot cake if pennywise, pound foolish policies are forced upon it."

SEE DELAY ON AID FOR GREEKS

Washington, March 29 (AP)—Congressional plans for an Easter holiday lengthened the odds today against final action on the Administration's $400,000,000 Greek-Turkish aid measure before the middle of April.

The homeward trek by the lawmakers—many want to talk over the diplomatic issues with constituents—also stymied the separate measure to authorize $350,000,000 of relief for Italy, Greece, Hungary, Austria, Poland and China.

There appeared some doubt a quorum can be mustered in the House next week for action on a $2,451,497,863 deficiency appropriations bill which includes another $300,000,000 for relief in American Occupation zones.

Should a quorum call be demanded in a challenge over any of the deficiency bills' contents, it might force a delay in action until the House recess has ended April 9. In any event, Senate approval of this measure seemed highly unlikely before then.

Thus, the administration's three-pronged program for strengthening its Curb-Communism drive may depend upon what reaction the lawmakers obtain in their face-to-face talks with the folks back home.

school and also served as athletic director.

Established High School

In 1916, he obtained a year's leave of absence and went back to York Springs. Since there was a scarcity of teachers in York Springs at that time, he was asked to teach the grammar school. Before his year's leave was ended, he was approached by the members of the York Springs school boards relative to the establishing of a high school in the community, in which higher educational advantages of some sort were badly needed for the many boys and girls who desired more education than the grade schools afforded. Mr. Starry accepted the responsibility to form a York Springs high school. The men on the school board at that time were N. E. Grove, Edward Kieffer, George Deatrick, Clayton Myers and George Day.

A freshman class was added to the grammar school in 1917, and in 1918 a small room was partitioned off in the present grammar school building and 13 pupils were enrolled as freshmen and sophomores. In 1922, the second floor of the York Springs bank building was leased and a third class high school, covering two years work, was established.

Another teacher was added and the rating was changed to second class. In 1929, the present building was completed, a four-year course inaugurated and the high school at the present time, is rated as a first class school.

Served 28 Years

In the 28 years of service as principal of the York Springs high school, Mr. Starry saw the registration increase from the original enrollment of 13 to an enrollment of 100. In addition to the required subjects being taught, Mr. Starry was instrumental in having added such extra curricular activities as dramatics, athletics, music, art, agriculture and campus activities.

Mr. Starry has seen hundreds of boys and girls graduate from the school. More than 50 per cent of these have gone on to higher education. There are a great number of ministers, nurses and teachers from this group. Mr. Starry has received a letter from Dr. W. A. Feiler, vice president of Sharpe and Dohme, recalling that he had been a pupil of Mr. Starry's in Roselle Park thirty years ago. Also in the Roselle school, Mr. Starry had as a pupil Wolfgang Pauli, now a professor of physics at Princeton university, and a Nobel prize winner in the field of physics in 1946. Mr. Starry tutored Dr. Pauli in mathematics 30 years ago.

EXPECT GROUP WON'T OUTLAW COMMUNISTS

Washington, March 29 (AP)—A member of the House committee on un-American activities said today the group may vote 4 to 3 against outlawing the Communist party, but is sure to recommend drastic new legal curbs on Communist maneuvering in this country.

The member, who withheld use of his name, said the seven-man committee may be unanimous in support of anti-Communist legislation short of making the whole party an illegal organization.

Chairman Thomas (R-NJ), told reporters the results of a week of hearings "will have to crystallize before the committee can adequately decide what it is going to do about outlawing the Communist party."

Prove Moscow Link

The committee made public last night a report which it said furnished historical proof running back to 1919 that the party in this country is "the agent" of Russia. The report listed 92 documents which it called "typical directives from Moscow affecting the Communist movement in the United States." Thomas said these were proof that the party is "a fifth column pawn of Moscow."

Included were excerpts from Russian broadcasts, Communist books and records of party conventions.

Suggest Next Steps

If various members pool their ideas, the committee may report that it can fight Communism vigorously by continuing to expose it and also by:

Saying in one or more laws, with appropriate penalties, that it is illegal to urge or conspire to overthrow the government by unconstitutional methods or by force and violence.

Tightening up on fingerprinting of aliens, on passports and visas, and on registration.

Strengthening the law against treason to get at borderline cases. Requiring the Communist party to publish its membership lists and sources of income.

Recommending that the FBI be strengthened and perhaps that it be made independent of the justice department.

Accident costs in the United States during 1946 averaged $144 for every family.

Top-Ranking College Boxers Fight Tonight

Madison, Wis., March 29 (AP)—Sixteen of the nation's top-ranking collegiate boxers, including six from host University of Wisconsin, fight it out tonight for championships in eight divisions in the finals of the NCAA boxing tournament at the Badger field house.

The finalists, survivors of a field of 57 who started the three-day slugfest Thursday, represent nine schools. Wisconsin, winner of the mythical team title when the tournament was last held in 1943, placed men in the finals in all except the heavyweight and 175-pound divisions. Other finalists were two from Idaho and San Jose (Calif.) college and one each from Syracuse, Penn State, Michigan State, South Carolina, Miami, and Washington State.

MAP PROGRAM ON ATHLETICS

Harrisburg, March 29 (AP)—The athletic programs of Pennsylvania's 14 State Teachers colleges will be more closely coordinated under a plan outlined today by Dr. Francis B. Haas, state superintendent of public instruction.

The plan, approved by the colleges' board of presidents, calls for an annual conference between athletic and administrative heads of all the schools to formulate mutual athletic policies.

Dr. Haas said the first conference will be held in December and will regulate these matters:

1. Pre-season training for football teams.
2. Selection of officials for intercollegiate athletic contests.
3. Systematizing procedures for scheduling games.
4. Uniform practices regarding student admission to athletic contests.

The blue print for the new program was drawn up at a meeting here Thursday and Friday between athletic and administrative officials of the 14 schools.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, March 29 (AP)—Johnny Evers, third of the famous Chicago Cubs of 1906-1910 to die within the past few months, probably will be remembered as long as baseball is played because he liked to go to bed at night. . . . On road trips, it was Evers' habit to retire early with some candy, a few newspapers and the baseball guide. As a result, he knew the rules forward and backward and he remembered them when the famous "Markie play" came up. . . . In fact, Johnny had checked on that three weeks before when a Pittsburgh runner failed to touch second as the winning run scored. Hank O'Day was umpiring alone that day and didn't see the omission, but he said he would have called the runner out. It was Hank who did call Merkle out in the crucial game. . . . Incidentally F. P. Adams, whose celebrated verse has helped keep the names of Tinker, Evers and Chance fresh in the minds of fans, claims he wrote it because he was in a hurry to go to a ball game and the composing room foreman said he needed eight lines to fill a column.

SPORTS BEFORE YOUR EYES

Look for a lively basketball coaching duel to develop in the south next season between Alabama's Floyd Burdette and Auburn's Danny Doyle. Both were wartime cage stars at Oklahoma A. and M., when Floyd was an Army captain stationed there and Danny was pursuing his studies between pro baseball seasons. . . . Persh Rohrer of the Athens, Ohio, Messenger calls attention to another one-armed high school basketballer. He's Cecil Bailey who, Persh says, can do more with one arm than most boys can with two. . . . Penn State's baseball squad includes Ray (Whitely) Kuroski, brother of the Cardinals' Whitely, and George Earnshaw, Jr., son of the former athletic pitcher.

WEAK-END ITEMS

The Giants are planning to follow the Dodgers' example and hold clinics for local high school ball teams. . . . Probably looking for a club they can beat. . . . Murray Goodman, who lists drum beating for Al Schacht and for a golf club among his accomplishments, has been named tournament manager for the new world pro tennis league. . . . "Baby" Jack Torrance, world shot record holder, is working for an oil company at Baton Rouge, La. . . . He probably is big enough now to toss the oil tanks around. . .

Lancaster, Pa., March 29 (AP)—Because of a record number of entries in doubles and singles, officials of the Eighth Annual Pennsylvania State Bowling championship are planning additional dates for the tournament opening April 12.

8,000 TO JAM PALESTRA FOR TITLE CONTEST

By TOM SHRIVER

Philadelphia, March 29 (AP)—Scho-lastic fans will be treated to a basketball "natural" tonight as District 7 challenges District 11 for the high school championship of Pennsylvania.

A determined band of school boys from Duquesne high school, with the WPIAL and Western PIAA titles already in their grasp meet a veteran combination from Allentown at the University of Pennsylvania's Palestra, with a crowd of 8,000 expected to jam their way into the building for the contest.

The game will determine the Class A championship of the Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic association and Allentown already has won the title for two straight years and hopes to make it three in a row tonight to equal a mark set by Lower Merion in 1941, 42, and 43.

Record of 74 Wins

Coach J. Birney Crum of the high flying Allentown Canaries will rely on two veterans and a trio of newcomers to turn back Duquesne. The squad has won 29 games this year in 31 starts. Their record shows 74 wins in their last 76 games.

The "Dukes" have a record for the present year that is just as impressive. Coach Bill Lemmer has directed his squad to 28 wins in 31 starts, with four of his regulars rounding out their second straight year on the varsity.

Lemmer said before the game that he had no scoring star that could be compared to either Bill Wanish, All-State center, or Elmo "Willie" Jackson, the speedy Allentown forward. But the "Dukes" did boast of a chap named Andy Budinak, who is hailed as one of the best to ever come out of the west.

Edge On Experience

George Hromanik and Jimmy Fulmer are both six footers, while Budinak and Andy Washington, Negro center of the "Dukes," are both six foot, one inch, which gives Coach Lemmer plenty of height against Crum's defending title-holders.

Allentown's big edge will come from the experience gained in two previous state championships, and the added advantage of having played on the Palestra floor five times prior to tonight's struggle. The Canaries lost to Bethlehem in their first start on the Penn floor this year, but since then have taken the measure of Bethlehem. Catausauqua, Chambersburg and Williamsport.

For Duquesne it will be the third visit to the state finals in six years. In 1941 the "Dukes" lost to Lower Merion, 24-32, then came back in 1944 to take the title from Hazleton, 43-37 after "Red" Meinhold, star center for the Mountaineers, was injured just prior to the state finals.

Golfing Oldsters Play Out In Front

Charlotte, N. C., March 29 (AP)—There were so many golfing oldsters out front today as play began in the postponed second round of the $10,000 Charlotte Open that some called it the rejuvenation Open.

A 41-year-old White Plains, N. Y., veteran led the way. Willie Goggin took a one-stroke edge with his six-under-par 66 Thursday before the start of a snow and sleet storm which left the 6,400-yard Myer park course so frozen and wet that the second round was put off.

And close behind Goggin, among the 28 players who bettered par 72, were such stars of the 1930's as Lawson Little of Cleveland, Horton Smith of Detroit, Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago, Ky., Laffoon of St. Andrews, Ill., Rick Metz of Chicago, Frank Moore of St. Louis, and Henry Picard of Cleveland.

Colleges Graduate 226 New Teachers

Harrisburg, March 29 (AP)—Winter graduating classes of Pennsylvania's State Teachers' colleges have produced 226 new teachers for the public system.

Dr. Francis B. Haas, superintendent of Public Instruction, said there were actually 273 graduates but 47 of that number were in-service teachers who went back to college to complete their four year course.

Of the total winter class graduates, 63 took elementary school work; 99 took high school academic work; and 11 specialized in the high school subjects of art, business, health, home economics, library, industrial arts and music. Dr. Henry Klonow, director of Teacher Education and Certification, reported.

PARSON DODDS SEEKS RECORD

Chicago, March 29 (AP)—Parson Gil Dodds, who has won seven one-mile races this season, showing progressive improvement with each, will try to add the climax tonight in the Chicago relays with an attempt to better his own indoor American record of 4:06.4.

Dodds' seventh mile victory of the season came last night when he bested his own meet record in the Knights of Columbus meet in Cleveland by two-tenths of a second by posting 4:08.5.

The bespectacled Dodds, representing the Boston A. A. established his mark in the meet's bankers' mile in 1944 and the same board oval—which he calls the fastest in the country—awaits his challenge tonight.

A sell-out throng of about 18,000 fans was expected in Chicago stadium as the Chicago relays brings the Midwest's indoor track season to a close by presenting a top-billed trio of Dodds, Herb McKenzie of Illinois in the "600" and Harrison Dillard of Baldwin-Wallace in the "hurdles series."

Cleveland, March 29 (AP)—Forest Elaw, former two-mile champion running unattached, won the Columbian two mile in 9:15.7 here last night after a hot duel with Curtis Stone, Penn State, present intercollegiate king. Stone set the pace until the next to last lap when Elaw breezed around him and won by 15 feet. Ed Sudzina, of Pittsburgh, placed third.

Chicago, March 29 (AP)—Johnny Keough, Cleveland, defeated Paddy Grimes, Alliquippa, Pa., in the 147-pound Golden Gloves championship bout last night.

Man O' War Marks Thirtieth Birthday

Lexington, Ky., March 29 (AP)—Man O'War munched his birthday carrots with the gusto of a yearling today, showing firm teeth that couldn't possibly betray his 30 years.

For the sake of sentiment, a simple horseshoe of flowers was draped on Big Red's stall in the only observance of his birthday. The rest of the day at Samuel D. Riddle's Faraway farm was routine for him.

It was a day of reminiscing among those closest to the famous race horse—for Riddle in particular. Realizing the potentialities of his fine yearling, Riddle saw that Man O'War was given more than average attention from the outset. He was rewarded with a thoroughbred that won 20 of 21 races and became one of the country's greatest sires.

NEW BISON COACH

Lewisburg, Pa., March 29 (AP)—Herbert H. Maack, captain of Columbia university football team in 1941, has been named line coach at Bucknell university, Albert E. Humphries, athletic director, announced today. Maack has been an assistant to Columbia mentor Lou Little for the past two seasons. He will report Monday to assist head Coach Harry Springline in conducting the Bison's practice drills.

ITALIAN HOPE LOSES

Boston, March 29 (AP)—Dulio Spagnolo, Italy's latest heavyweight boxing hope, today was attempting to pick up the pieces of his unsuccessful American debut. That 185-pound visitor drew the experienced Lee Savold, 206, of Paterson, N. J., as his first American rival and the latter coasted to an eight-round technical knockout win in their scheduled 10-round feature contest before a 9,718 crowd last night at the Boston garden.

M'NEELY WINS SCORING TITLE

By TED MEIER

New York, March 29 (AP)—Flipping 255 field goals and 215 free throws through the net in 33 games, Cliff McNeely, of Texas Wesleyan, won the 1947 National Intercollegiate individual high scoring basketball race with 725 points. This is 82 points more than the 643 with which Bob Kurland, of the Oklahoma Aggies, won the title a year ago, and 133 more than the 592 Vince Hanson, of Washington State, scored in taking the 1945 crown.

McNeely, the nation's top scorer virtually from the start of the season, lost a chance to break the one-season scoring record of 777 points when Texas Wesleyan was eliminated early in the NAIB tourney at Kansas City. Unfortunately, too, he missed several games in mid-season because of an injured ankle.

Jim Lacy, of Baltimore Loyola, at one time during the season cut McNeely's lead to 29 points, but today's final compilation by the Associated Press, shows he finished second 58 points behind at 667. Lacy, playing in one less game than McNeely, rimmed 242 field goals and 183 charity tosses.

Darl Wilmoth, of Alcorn-Broadus, finished third with 591 points and E. F. Farham, of Texas Wesleyan, fourth at 553. Bill Hall, of Marshall, and Darrell Brown, of Humboldt, Calif., tied for fifth at 552.

CHANDLER KEEPS HEARING OPEN

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 29 (AP)—Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler was on his way back to Cincinnati today in the wake of his announcement that his hearing into the New York Yankees-Brooklyn Dodgers feud would be kept open indefinitely.

The diamond czar, instead of closing out the quarrel as the baseball people hoped he would do, said he wanted to explore the matter at his leisure.

His decision created a wealth of uneasy conjecture in the baseball colony, already thoroughly sorry that Larry MacPhail of the Yankees ever brought his row with Branch Rickey of the Dodgers into the game's high court.

The baseball people are wondering just what the commissioner heard in his two sessions here and at Sarasota this week that aroused him. After yesterday's four and one-half hour session here, Walter Mulbry, Chandler's secretary and spokesman, told reporters:

"MacPhail asked the commissioner to make a statement after today's hearing, but the commissioner declined. He said that a number of things had developed at the hearings which he wants to look into more thoroughly. He said the hearing would continue indefinitely, and that it might reconvene at an early date."

ASKS STANDARD FOR HOMERUNS

Pittsburgh, March 29 (AP)—One of baseball's more scholarly fans wants to standardize the home run by making it reach a set distance.

He is Dr. Marion K. McKay, head of the economics department at Pitt, who says:

"It's unfair now. For instance, if a batter hits a home run in left field at Griffith stadium, Washington, the ball must travel 405 feet. In the polo grounds, New York, a home run to left field goes only 279 feet. It's ridiculous. Competition is hardly fair under these conditions."

Here's the professor's solution:

"Take the longest distance in left field in the majors. That would be Washington's 405 feet. Then take the longest right field distance, approximately 370 feet in Philadelphia. Standardize these figures and make a home run conform to them. Erect screens to catch balls that aren't hit long enough for a home run. A ground rule double could easily take care of balls hitting the screens."

SPENT WINTER IN CAVE IN CINDERS

Camden, N. J., March 29 (AP)—Two ex-Californians didn't let the housing shortage bother them one bit—they dug a cave in a cinder pile and spent the winter.

No kidding.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis J. Booker, looking a little sooty, told Judge John DiMona in Camden police court they lived all winter in a cave they dug in a cinder pile under a viaduct.

"Yes sir," the 54-year-old gentleman said. "We have been living there since we came from California."

"Only place we could get to live," his wife, Bertha, 49, nodded, affirming hubby's testimony. The couple had been arrested on vagrancy charges.

"Well," said Judge DiMona, "I dismiss the charge."

John Clark, warden of the Camden dog pound which adjoins the cinder pile, declared "We've seen this couple around since—I don't know—I guess since November. They didn't make any trouble, so why should we disturb them?"

THAT INNER IDEAL

No one need tell us that we are all different. We have fundamental elements that are common to us all, but within each of us may be an inner ideal. It is the clothing and warming of this ideal that gives zest to every effort that we make.

The poorest laborer has it, or may have it, though it may be but the eeding of his body or that of his family. And there is a courageousness about the process, as fine and noble as the ideal that another may have for benefiting a great number, or the serving of some great personal purpose.

All through life we are actuated by this inner ideal in some measure, be it great or small. How little we now about what goes on in another's inward life! A noted writer once said a gang of day laborers just to learn about what went on among these people, and William James, commenting upon the experiment, stated that "one may have been a convert of the Salvation Army, and a nightingale singing of expiation and forgiveness in his heart all the while he labored."

Which makes me think of that familiar story about the three workmen, when asked what they were doing. One said he was a mason setting bricks, another said he was a workman getting so much a day, but the third man said he was at the job of building a cathedral! There was the picture of the inner ideal at work. The casual observer would probably have looked upon them all as "just day laborers."

Take the poor and struggling, for example. With what dignity and courage they face each day of effort. Their honest toil often touches a spiritual height that few, in more favorable circumstances, ever experience. That inner ideal of theirs is a challenge that should inspire a better understanding between us all.

With the lacking of this inner ideal, however, whether among the poor or rich, there is an existence of barrenness and frustration that is indeed tragic, nevertheless such condition is the concern of us all. To be happy, and useful, however, no matter what our circumstances in life, we must, in some measure be dominated by an inner consciousness, or a realized meaning, to give us lift and hope—an inner ideal at our service.

FEAR
Fear holds the timid back
And bids them stay—
Hinting that strength they lack
To win the day.

Fear fills men's minds with doubt;
Gets them to dread
Hazards and barriers stout
Lying ahead.

Fear at the outset starts
Bearing within,
Taking from hopeful hearts
Courage to win.

Fear, of all foes is worst!
In his career
Who would succeed must first
Overcome fear.

SENATE DELAY SEEN ON TAX SLASHING BILL

By JACK BELL

Washington, March 29 (AP)—The Senate Finance committee reserved a cold storage spot today for the House-approved tax cutting bill until members can find out more about government costs next year.

Chairman Millikin (R-Colo.) told a reporter that hearings on the measure to lop nearly 44,000,000 off this year's tax bills of 46,000,000 citizens "probably won't be started for several weeks." These hearings are necessary before the full Senate can act.

With the aid of 40 Democrats, 233 Republicans pushed the bill through the House Thursday on a 273 to 137 vote. This was one short of the two-thirds that would be required to override a veto and indicated that some compromising may be in order if GOP leaders hope to get a tax-slashing bill enacted over adamant White House opposition.

Some Changes Coming
Millikin left little doubt that when his committee does get around to it, some changes are likely in the measure which provides 30 per cent slashes in taxes for 25,000,000 in the lower income brackets and 20 per cent off for most in the higher echelons.

"Personally, I want to wait until there is some decision on the budget before we determine what we are going to do about cutting taxes," the Colorado Senator said. "It remains to be seen whether the Senate committee will want to cut as deeply as the House."

Senator Taft of Ohio, the GOP Policy committee chairman, announced that while he considers the House measure "a good bill" in the main, he is opposed to carrying tax reductions back to last January 1, as the measure does.

Senator Byrd (D-Va.) assailed Thursday's House action as "a very fine example of putting the cart before the horse." Byrd charged that the proposed tax reduction would cause a revenue loss to the government of nearly $6,000,000,000 in the fiscal year beginning July 1. He said the House thus far has voted only an actual cut in expenses of $100,000,000.

RESCUERS NEAR END OF TRAGIC WORK IN MINES

Centralia, Ill., March 29 (AP)—Tired rescue workers today neared the end of their hopeless search for survivors of last Tuesday's disastrous coal mine explosion which claimed an estimated 111 lives.

The mournful tolling of funeral church bells marked the deepest sorrow in the history of this community of 16,000 after rescue squads reported they had searched the mine's "dead end"—the only spot in the workings that might have provided a refuge for some of the trapped men—and found 12 bodies.

Early today two additional bodies were found and the grim discoveries brought to 94 the known dead in the explosion and left only 17 miners still unaccounted for.

"All Lost Now"

"They're all lost now," a rescue leader said after not a living person was found in the "dead end" extremity of the pit, 1/10 mile below the surface and 3 1/2 miles from the only shaft to escape.

Some rescue workers had maintained there was a remote possibility some of the miners could have erected a barricade at the "dead end" to keep out the deadly mine gases if they only had time. There was no sign of a barricade.

As church bells sounded today for the funerals of 12 of the victims the exhausting search continued for the remaining 17 of the 142 that had been in the pit at the time of the explosion. The 31 who were brought out alive were rescued immediately after the blast.

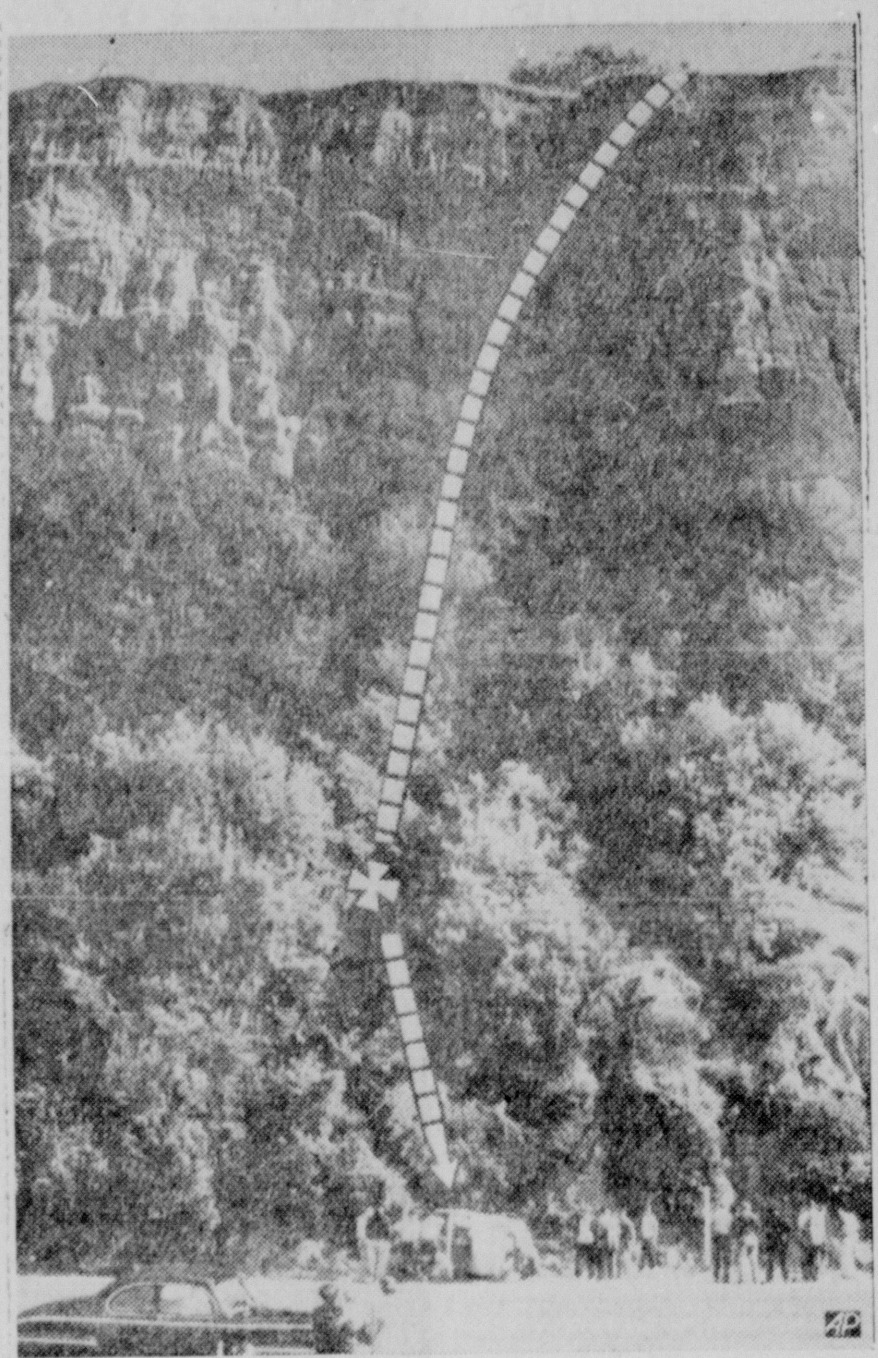

Worst In 19 Years
The disaster at the Centralia Coal Co. No. 5 mine ranked as the most serious in the nation's coal fields in 19 years.

In Washington, John L. Lewis, president of the AFL United Mine Workers—to which the disaster victims belonged—told a senate committee yesterday the miners were "murdered because of the criminal negligence of J. A. Krug," secretary of the Interior and federal coal mines administrator.

As Centralia and surrounding communities prepared to observe a "day of mourning" Monday preparations went forward for inquiries into the disaster.

WHAT'S UP, DOC?

Chicago (AP)—After a North Side physician got a telephone call from a Mrs. Moss to hurry over and examine her husband he checked his card index for the Moss' address.

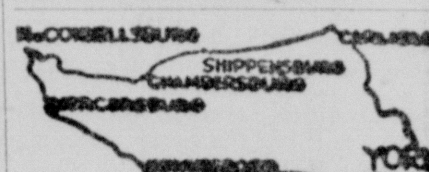

Mrs. Richard Moss expressed surprise when the physician arrived. But he found her husband with the chest pains Mrs. Moss had described and ordered Moss to bed. He evaded Moss' question as to whether Mrs. Moss had called him.

Back at his office Mrs. Edward Moss called and asked the doctor what had delayed his visit. Then he realized he had gone to the wrong Moss home. After treating Edward Moss, also suffering with chest pains, and ordering him to bed, the physician telephoned Richard Moss and explained.

The inquiry also will consider a letter written by miners a year ago to Governor Dwight H. Green of Illinois termed a "plea to you to please save our lives x x x before we have a dust explosion at this mine."

Probes have been ordered or planned by the U. S. Senate and House, Governor Green and a fact-finding commission, the Illinois legislature, and a county grand jury.

HOME OWNERS MAY BE GIVEN NEW TAX BURDEN

Harrisburg, March 29 (AP)—The state Legislature today studied warnings from two state organizations that "the home owner both the big and little fellow," will suffer under the present plans for providing higher pay for teachers.

The state Chamber of Commerce joined with the Pennsylvania real estate association in cautioning the lawmakers to "study the problem closer."

Stanley A. Gillespie, president of the real estate group, citing a legislative report showing measures now under consideration would more than double present educational costs in Pennsylvania, said "more people must be made to share in the costs of education."

fellow, and none can stand an additional burden," he declared.

The state chamber also urged the assembly to study the salary problem closely, maintaining that passage of present legislation will result in "new taxes or in (present) rate increases."

At the same time, it reiterated a previous plea that the legislature consider "long-term" legislation on education rather than "temporary" expedients.

Would Double Costs
Gillespie said "our association previously supported a pay raise for teachers, but before a bill calling for such astronomical figures is passed I think we should be informed where the money is coming from."

He referred to the Sollenberger-Stuart bill, sponsored by the Pennsylvania Educational association, which the school commission estimated would boost educational costs to approximately $507,000,000 annually—more than twice present costs.

Mandated minimum scales would be increased $1,000 a year under the measure, raising the present level from $1,400 to $2,400.

ASKS IF USSR IS STALLING OVER TREATY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

The Moscow conference of the Big Four Foreign Ministers continues its way after the disconcerting fashion of a coughing jockey whose arrival at its destination is very much a matter of doubt.

Having been in action more than a fortnight the parley, which had as its purpose the writing of peace treaties for Germany and Austria, has got exactly nowhere so far as concerns its objective. However, that's more a matter of concern than of surprise, for there was very little optimism when the conference began its sessions, as this column pointed out at the time. There were too many differences between Russia and the Western Democracies.

Not A Failure
But while the conference hasn't thus far achieved what it set out to do, it's far from having been a failure. It has furnished a clear-cut demonstration of American-British determination not to be pushed out of their own playing fields. The cool, calm forcefulness of Secretary Marshall has made him the dominant figure of the meeting. He has more than held his ground in the face of forceful maneuvers and attacks by Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov.

Unhappily the conference has been given up largely to these maneuvers for position, and the arguments have revolved mainly about German affairs, as was to be expected, for the German treaty is the Keystone of the whole European rehabilitation program. Under the best of circumstances it would be a titanic task to settle the affairs of this country which entered the war as the greatest power of the European continent.

Now Russia has taken over the dominant continental position, and her moves in establishing her new zone of influence have made it plain that she aspires to control the entire continent, clear through to the English channel. But the main arch for such a vast structure still must be strategically located in Germany with its industrial resources. That's why you've been hearing observers ask:

Delay Aids Reds
"Is Russia stalling in the Moscow conference so as to block the writing of a treaty and thus give her more time in which to establish her control over Germany? Are Moscow's proposals for a treaty framed with the idea of establishing such a control?"

Suspensions of this sort have been strengthened by the two-sided manner in which countries like Poland, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia and Romania have been brought under Communist governments. The picture, not only in Europe but around the globe, is that of a Russia which is actively engaged in carrying out the Bolshevik program of world revolution for the establishment of Communism in all nations.

What ever may be the answer, any delay in writing a treaty would seem to work to Russia's advantage, since it gives her more time to consolidate her position in eastern Germany which she occupies.

Public Employees In New York Can't Strike

Albany, N. Y., March 29 (P)—Strikes by public employees were flatly forbidden Friday in New York state under a labor-condemned bill which Governor Thomas E. Dewey signed into law with apparent disregard for possible political reprisals.

In approving the controversial Condon-Wadlin bill, which calls for automatic dismissal of striking public workers, Dewey declared that such walkouts could lead to anarchy through what he called a paralysis of government and of "all society."

"This no people can permit and survive," he said.

The measure, effective with the governor's signature Thursday, applies to all employees of the state and its political subdivisions.

Dewey, a possibility for the 1948 Republican Presidential nomination, signed the measure over the vigorous protests of organized labor, civil service employee groups and school teacher organizations.

More About Points

The burning of breaker points is a fairly complicated business and does not always mean that there is excessive voltage in the ignition system. One condition often overlooked is weakness of the breaker arm spring. This results in the points actually "bouncing." They then arc and burn. Also if the cam angle is too great the points will remain closed for too long a period each time they contact. That is another way of saying that too much current will flow through them and that they will burn because they are over-heated.

Tough Oil Pans

When I recently recommended dropping the oil pan to clean out the crankcase manually I knew I was stirring up a hornet's nest. So many of the newer pans are so difficult to remove.

One thing that often stands in the way of the job is need for changing the crankshaft's position. On some cars, for instance, the pan won't come off until the No. 1 piston is at the upper limit of its stroke. On some cars the steering tire rod must be removed. There is another that requires removal of the front center cross member and a third which won't give up its front screws until the front insulator support for the engine is removed.

No wonder service costs so much on some cars. No wonder the field is wide open for someone to produce lower priced, simplified cars.

Joits From Fender Bumps

A lot of motorists make themselves unnecessarily unhappy by comparing bills for body and fender repairs, never stopping to realize that what seem to be bargains usually just mean that the job was not three times as much as another. It all depends on whether the damage can be bumped out and spot finished or whether the whole fender must be refinished after being repaired. Moreover there is the matter of color. Black is relatively easy.

If fender damage involves the running board, door and rear quarter panel you are in for expense. I saw a job like this the other day. On the surface it didn't look too unlike another rear fender sock that involved only the fender and the hub cap. But it costs the owner $65.

Mechanic Joe Speaking:

"Those hydraulic brakes are a matter of your personal safety, so I feel justified in warning you to have your regular service man keep the fluid reservoir up to the proper level every time you go to his shop for periodic greasing. In this way you insure yourself against having to add fluid when on a tour and when there is always the risk that someone may put in something that is wrong for the system.

"In checking the fluid level in this way he will also be quick to note if there is continued drop in the supply. That drop would indicate leakage which must be checked if you are to avoid trouble. And by trouble I don't mean just having to add fluid en route, and taking a chance on getting inferior fluid, but having fluid leak out on the brake linings."

Idea Saved A Smash

A reader of these weekly chats about cars tells how he kept from smashing into a line of cars stopped for a traffic light by doing a little trick which any of us could handle—if we were quick enough to think of it. Finding himself at the helm of a trailer truck, and without sufficient air brake power to hold the giant on a downgrade, he shifted into reverse, revved up the engine and slipped the clutch. It was just enough to help him hold the giant stationary.

Toward Better Belting

I wish it were available to each of us, but the fan belt flipper tool is reserved exclusively for those who handle one of the better known brands of belts. This new tool saves a lot of heartache because it makes installation of a new belt the simplicity it seems to be in the instruction book. It is my personal belief that this is too good a gadget to keep from the accessory market and that sooner or later it is going to be yours for the asking. Meanwhile when you are installing a new belt always remember that it should not be so tight that you cannot move the fan by pressure of your hand on one of the blades. You may need to recheck the adjustment after the new belt has stretched a bit.

Guides to Gaskets

Just what to put on a cylinder head gasket when doing a motor job seems to worry a lot of people these days when springtime overhauling is in the wind. Actually the matter of first importance is having the gasket, both sides, clean. The head and block also should be perfectly free of particles of dirt or carbon. In the case of a copper gasket nothing should be used to make it "stick," since the object is to squeeze it down and allow the copper to do the sealing. If anything must be put on a gasket a little gasket cement is sufficient, and only on one side. Grease isn't too popular these days, nor shellac.

It is important that the correct side of a gasket is up, otherwise water passage holes won't line up. Watch for markings.

Gas Puts On a Show

While gasoline has been recognized as a hazardous type of fuel these many years the industry is witnessing for the first time a special portable show which is designed to teach the trade how to handle it safely. This also includes such problems as safe cleaning of storage tanks and freedom from risk where tetraethyl lead is used for anti-knock purposes. Five of these shows are touring the country. Fires are started and extinguished right before your eyes. The show's theme is that the very characteristic which makes gasoline so useful is also its greatest hazard. It does not need to be heated up before it will give off energy. Its high volatility insures its usefulness as an immediate giver of power.

These shows are expected to go a long way toward checking fires and explosions. Filling station people all over the country will soon know the whole story and will pass along a lot of it to the motorist.

Try 'em In Traffic

Buses that pull over to the curb are apt to cut off your view of a boulevard stop sign. Better stop just to be on the safe side.

If you have to stop suddenly and haven't time to lower the window to hand signal try dabbing the brake pedal. This makes the stoplights flash, insuring better attention from those behind. The dabbing method will insure a better stop, too.

The Strange Returning

By Cameron Dockery AP Newfeatures

Chapter 16

No sound came from the motionless figure of Amos Larabee. He lay flat on his back, his head turned away from Jeff, his withered old arm outstretched toward a gleaming object. As Jeff's eyes adjusted to the gloomy interior he saw that the metallic glint was the hard outline of a revolver. An anguished groan escaped him.

Whitey Evans pushed past him and stooping, felt Larabee's cold wrist. His fingers came away quickly.

"The old fellow has been dead for some time, Jeff—at least twenty-four hours, I'd say."

He leaned toward the revolver as though to pick it up.

"Don't touch it!" Jeff warned suddenly.

Evans eyes were startled. "Hey, you don't think—?"

"I don't think Amos Larabee killed himself, Whitey, even though everything seems to point to that." Jeff stepped over the recumbent form and stared at the small neat wound in the old prospector's temple.

"Poor old coddler, he probably died because of me and I'll bet they never told him why. I wish he'd known—it might have given him some satisfaction."

Amazement flooded Evans' face. "I don't get it."

In a few terse sentences Jeff sketched the details of his own predicament and the fact that old Larabee had been the only living witness to the purchase of the Irkine property. When he finished, Evans whistled softly.

"Then you think this was murder?"

"Yes, and I want the gun examined for finger prints."

"Murder is a pretty extreme measure," Evans looked uncertain.

"These men are extreme, and I doubt very much if this is the first killing that can be chalked up to them."

Evans stood up, hands on hips; his lean young face was twisted into a grimace of bewilderment, he seemed almost embarrassed.

"Look, Jeff, you know more about this than I do, but isn't it possible this is a case of suicide? Living all alone here in his grubby shack, Larabee may have become despondent. He may have had some chronic illness or some keen disappointment over one of his strikes. Perhaps the strike he told the police about the other day didn't pan out after all."

Jeff shook his head in positive denial.

"Amos was more or less alone all his life, Whitey, he liked it that way. He's had hundreds of disappointments over his diggings but they only seemed to spur him on to try again. As for his health—if there was anything wrong physically it will show up in the autopsy report. As long as I've known him he's been a wiry and energetic as one of his burros."

The two men eyed each other solemnly then suddenly Jeff snapped his fingers and got to his feet.

"I've thought of something else which may sound far-fetched but I'll bet my bottom dollar it's true! Coulter knew I'd be coming up here to find Amos and he hoped I'd come alone and in some way be blamed for Amos' death." His long fingers went to Evans' shoulder in a friendly grip. "Whitey, meeting you today was sheer damn-fool luck."

Evans grinned and fanned himself with his hat. "If that's the case you'd better be the one to make the report. I'll stay here with Larabee; you don't want to get involved any more than necessary at this stage of the game."

Jeff took the patrol car into Yuma and reported to the station house. He returned with the coroner and two of the local police. After Larabee's body had been removed he searched the shack for papers under the watchful eye of the law. If there had ever been any, they were missing now, someone had already done a thorough and orderly job of examining the room.

Jeff sighed in disappointment. Only Amos Larabee's written signature could have helped him and now the gnarled old fingers were stilled forever.

He went outside and fed and watered the burro.

"What will become of this little fellow?" he said, pulling the long tasseled ears gently.

"We'll take him down the road, an Indian family will keep him until the law decides what to do with Larabee's property. Wonder if the old coddler had any relatives we ought to notify?"

"I doubt it," Jeff replied, "he was just about as lonely as any man can be in this world and still be happy."

With the onset of evening and the resultant drop in temperature Yuma came to life. The streets were thronged with strolling men, women and children who emerged from the protective shade of their homes just as the desert creatures creep from their sheltering rocks and bushes as the sands cooled. They walked aimlessly along the overhanging sidewalks, peering in shop windows, standing fascinated before minerals displayed under the revealing glow of an ultra-violet lamp, or turning in to eye the dubious wonders of a blatantly advertised side-show.

Jeff had no appetite for supper.

seats. He leaned out, grinning genially.

"Hey, I'm taking this tribe up to Phoenix but I'll be back in a day or two. How about coming over then and trying out Dad's new swimming pool?"

"Sounds wonderful." Linda agreed with enthusiasm. Jeff felt a twinge of surprise at her attitude, then tried to accept the invitation with equal cordiality, but he was unable to keep the coolness of his thoughts from creeping into his tone of voice. Gill Gentry looked surprised and Monica pulled up her coat collar with an exaggerated gesture.

"Brrr," she mocked. "And I thought this was a hot day!"

After they had driven on, Linda smiled at Jeff. "You're not very good at hiding your feelings, are you?"

"Afraid not," his voice was still frosty. "But you certainly sounded as if you meant to accept Gentry's offer."

"I did. After all, Gill and Monica are not responsible for their father's actions. It would be a shame to spoil Gill's good time by refusing him friendship when there are so few young people around here."

Jeff's lips thinned to a tight line. "Especially when Gill Gentry is a good looking guy with plenty of what it takes," he added sarcastically.

"Yes, he is, very good looking."

"Considering your opinion of his father I should think it would be a little hard to accept his hospitality."

"Didn't you ever hear that there's more than one way to skin a cat?"

Jeff didn't answer and a malicious twinkle lingered in Linda's eyes, but she spurred her mare ahead and Jeff saw only the firm straight line of her back. He frowned, wondering at the strange inner dismay that seemed to have gripped him.

Chapter 18

The letter from Whitey Evans was due two days later. Jeff rode in to the McCloud postoffice to pick it up and when he was through reading it there were white lines of anger around his mouth.

"Dear Jeff," it ran, "you were right though I doubt if it will give you much satisfaction to know it. The medical report on Larabee just came in. Except for the inroads of old age he was as sound as a nut. There were no fingerprints on the revolver, it had been wiped clean. I quizzed the Indian family down the road from his shack; they swore they saw a black car—a sedan, I guessed from their vague description—drive into Larabee's place the afternoon before we found him, but could give no further dope. We examined the ground for tire markings but the treads must have been worn and the ground was so hard that they left no pattern."

"Larabee must have had some cash—he was indebted to no one in Yuma but there isn't a trace of money in his shack. Someone gave it a thorough going-over."

"Take care of yourself, fella, and if I can lend a hand just let me know. Yours, Whitey."

Grimly Jeff made out a money order to Whitey Evans to cover Larabee's funeral expenses. He mailed it with an accompanying note and went out into the dazzling sunshine.

He was careful to stay on the side of the street away from Coulter's trucking office. The bitterness that rose up in him was at the boiling point; he realized that if he came face to face with Coulter or one of his hirelings he might lose his self-control. Coulter must be made to pay for his crimes but it would be small satisfaction to Jeff if he had to read an account of it from a jail cell. Besides there was Gentry to buck as well.

He walked slowly, pulling down the brim of his Stetson against the

Exonerate Gas Co. In Fatal Explosion

Pittsburgh, March 29 (AP)—A verdict of accidental death was returned Thursday by an Allegheny county coroner's jury investigating the gas explosion of March 12, which killed Mrs. Jean Rapp, 41, of Wilkesburg, injured two of her children, and destroyed two houses.

The verdict, exonerated the borough of Wilkesburg, the Peoples Natural Gas Co., and the Craft Construction Co. The explosion occurred when a party of workmen, excavating for a sewer system, set off a dynamite blast which tore open a big gas line. The escaping gas exploded shortly afterward.

A man leaned on the hitching rail fondling Star's ears and talking to the horse in a low confidential voice. Jeff recognized the wiry figure of Mr. Briscoe, the cattle man. He called out a greeting and was astonished to see tears in the older man's eyes when he turned around.

"Mr. Briscoe! What is it? Something wrong?"

"Son, I'm on my way to commit meymen."

There was no doubting the meaning of his words. Old Briscoe's face was white with fury and grief. Jeff noted the bulky outline of a shoulder holster beneath his coat.

"What happened?"

"The other gelding, the half brother to this one—someone drove by last evening at sundown and put a bullet into him! They didn't even make a clean job of it—I had to put him away myself."

Briscoe's lips trembled and tears slid down his weathered cheeks.

"My God, Jeff it was the hardest job I've ever had to do!"

Jeff's blood seemed to turn to ice water in his veins. Murder for money was one thing and there was no condoning it, but wounding a defenseless animal out of sheer spite and vengeance was the lowest action a man could stoop to. There was only one man in McCloud with a mind that could contrive such vindictiveness.

Mr. Briscoe stared at him. "I can see you're thinkin' just what I've been thinkin' ever since I found the gelding."

Jeff nodded and reached in his pocket bringing out the .22 slug from Brasher's rifle. "Did the bullet that killed the gelding match this one?"

Briscoe turned it over in his fingers curiously. "Looks like it—even has the same little groove down the side here."

"Save it," Jeff advised. "A ballistie expert can prove without a doubt that they're from the same rifle, a .22 owned by Brasher."

"Brasher? Who's he?"

"A red-headed neechman of Coulter's. You didn't think Coulter did his own dirty work, did you? He's too slick for that."

"It's all the same to me."

A determined light came into Briscoe's red-rimmed eyes, he felt his shoulder holster and started to move away. Jeff clutched his elbow in a restraining grip.

"Wait sir, I must talk with you."

'HANDS-OFF' ON LABOR BILLS BY ADMINISTRATION

By LEONARD A. UNGER Harrisburg, March 29 (AP)—The administration is adopting a "hands-off" policy on restrictive labor legislation. Keeping an eye cocked on Congressional efforts in that direction.

This declaration came from State Sen. O. J. Tallman (R-Lehigh) and Rep. Herbert P. Sorg (R-Elk), majority floor leaders in the Senate and House respectively.

"There is definite sentiment among some legislators that measures should be taken to prevent strikes in the more essential industries—public utilities, for example," Tallman told a reporter.

No Administration Support: He explained, however, such restrictive legislation may be adopted by Congress within the next few weeks, thereby precluding the "necessity of such action" by the General Assembly.

Sorg, echoing Tallman's viewpoint, said the overwhelmingly Republican majority in the House has tabled all anti-labor legislation for the same reasons.

Only two bills which may be construed as anti-labor have reached

"You can't stop me son—I've been hearin' these stories about Coulter for the past year, but it took something personal to wake me up to what's been goin' on. I'm an older man and I've got nothin' to lose. A man of Coulter's calibre has no right to go on livin' an' messin' up other folks' lives."

"You've got your stock farm to lose," Jeff reminded him softly. "The Rocking B Ranch and all it stands for, with its reputation for breeding fine animals like Star here."

"Star?"

"That's right—Star Chiefstain after his sire."

Briscoe's eyes grew moist, he gentled the horse's muzzle, then suddenly his body stiffened, his hand fell to his side. "Ev God, when I think of that other gelding."

Jeff stalled for time, seeking desperately for some way of stopping the old man.

"You've got to listen to me, sir," he insisted.

"My mind is made up, son. I've had all night to think about it."

"Mr. Briscoe, in all justice to me and to yourself you've got to hear my story first. You don't know what this means to me."

He was pleading now, for Briscoe's life, only the old gentleman didn't realize it. After a curious glance at Jeff's face he permitted himself to be led reluctantly to the sun-drenched little plaza in the town's center; they found a deserted bench where Jeff told him his whole story.

"Just give me a week," he begged, "before you take the law into your own hands." With relief he watched Briscoe nod in mute acquiescence.

necessarily indicate that it is dirty. Ordinarily a filter cartridge should last for 5,000 miles, considerably less of course if the engine is dirty. If the filter is equipped with a drain it is well to open this frequently in order to withdraw trapped out sludge. This will also help keep the cartridge more efficient.

Q. Several months ago I had a new pinion and ring gear installed in my car. Everything went well until recently when the rear end has become noisy. Do you think this means the gears were not of good quality? And what can I do about it now?—J. W.

the floor of the Legislature. Neither had administration support.

One is a women's labor measure which has met with AFL and CIO opposition and is expected to be hotly debated in the House Monday. It would extend the maximum work week for women from 44 to 48 hours, a day's shift from eight to 10 hours and permit them to work at any hour around the clock.

Closed Shop Bill

The other, listed for initial action by the Senate Monday, is a bill to outlaw closed shops in Pennsylvania. "That bill will have to stand on its own feet without administration backing," Tallman said.

Chairman James S. Berger of the Senate labor and industry committee is sponsor of the measure which he said would reassure that "a man's right to work is fundamental as his right to strike."

A heat of other anti-labor bills has been introduced in both Houses, ranging from those which would require compulsory collective bargaining to others which would bar picketing in any form.

A. I think you will find that some foreign matter has got into the rear end and that the bearings have worn just enough to throw the gears off their mated cone centers. Replacing the bearings will solve it.

Q. There seems to be considerable lack of power in my engine when climbing hills. I am sure that the motor isn't overheating and the valve tappets have sufficient clearance. Have tried different kinds of gasoline and have rechecked the ignition timing. No compression test has been taken but the engine seems to be quite efficient.—E. B. H.

A. How about carbon? Better take a compression test. There may be carbon under the valve seats.

Mr. Russell will answer questions regarding the safe care and operation of your car. Just address him at 254 Fern street, Hartford, Conn., and send stamped, self-addressed envelope for a personal reply.

Sugar Ration Bill Returns To House

Washington, March 29 (AP)—The Senate sent back to the House with minor changes Friday a bill to continue sugar rationing and price control until next October 31.

The House already has approved the seven-month extension from next Monday, when present controls expire.

It will be asked to accept Senate amendments (1) guaranteeing 35 pounds of sugar per person for home use this year and 50 pounds if enough is available and (2) setting aside 50,000 tons for new industrial users. Individual users received 25 pounds apiece in 1946.

Party lines meant little as the Senate adopted the bill last night, 46 to 34, after bitter debate in which Senator Tobey (R-N. H.) predicted the action may bring about a "national scandal" by encouraging sugar hoarding, gambling and profiteering.

DISASTER will strike this year!

In 65 years, the American Red Cross has relieved over 4,000 disasters of all kinds. Last year, alone, it assisted more than 136,000 people battered by catastrophe.

This year, the suffering and misery will again be great when new calamities strike down additional thousands. But come what may, you can depend on this:

As always, the Red Cross will be there to reduce the toll . . . ease the pain . . . soften the suffering.

Emergency aid for the injured . . . food and shelter for the homeless . . . help in restoring homes according to need. These services—and many more—the Red Cross will provide to all needy sufferers regardless of creed or race, young or old.

This vital work requires money—lots of it. Your support is urgently needed. So please give—and give generously—to your Red Cross chapter. There is no worthier cause!

GIVE—so your RED + CROSS can carry on!

Adams county has some excellent poultry farmers, and is producing chickens and eggs second to none. We sent no eggs to the farm show and if chickens had been permitted we probably would not have sent any chickens either.

"We have some excellent dairy cattle in the county and yet I saw no Adams county dairymen represented at the state farm show. I hope that next year we can get a few more of our top agricultural products into the farm show and walk away with prizes for other things besides apples, corn and the like."

Hartman said he had recently a number of farms in the county. Following a recent demonstration on blasting ditches, a large number of requests have been made for information on the technique of "digging ditches with dynamite." An unusually large number of requests for information on placing tile drains has also been received, Dunmire said. Farm ponds are another feature of farm management which is attracting much more attention than in previous years, he said.

Need Farm Leaders

County Agent Hartman said that much of the work of his office during the next few months apparently would be on contour, strip and crop rotation problems.

Hartman also spoke of the importance of developing leadership to head up county agricultural groups such as 4-H clubs and the like. Pointing out that the success of already established farm organizations in the county can be traced to excellent leadership he urged the group to take particular attention to developing more leaders for new farm organizations that might be formed here, such as additional 4-H clubs.

Pointing out that Adams county apples won most of the prizes at the state farm show and that 37 ten-ton tomato growers were recorded in Adams county last year, Hartman urged that the farmers consider putting more county products into contests—and put the rest of Adams county's agricultural products into the limelight.

Sentence Brothers For Beating Principal

Norristown, Pa., March 29 (AP)—Two brothers, Donald R. Whistler, 23, and James, 19, were sentenced to jail by Judge George C. Corson after pleading guilty to beating the principal of Linfield school.

Donald, of Linfield, and James, of Pottstown, admitted beating Charles B. Shoup, 45, the principal, after they said they heard him swearing at a pupil.

Donald was sentenced to one year in prison and fined $200 while James received a three-month sentence.

PILOT KILLED

Norristown, Pa., March 29 (AP)—While attempting to take off from Patco field in Plymouth township the pilot of an army advanced training plane was killed. Identified as Capt. Edward O. Fisher, 30, of Oswego, Ore., he had landed at the field 15 minutes earlier last night with a passenger, Capt. George W. Cressman, himself a pilot, who was on leave to visit his wife, Ellen, of Norristown.

spent a day in Harrisburg at the Bureau of Animal Industry to get the latest information on control of Bang's disease, which he said was prevalent in the county. He also described such meetings as the all-day apple and peach meeting at Biglerville tomato meetings, the all-day farmers' meeting at Littlestown, sectional potato meetings at York, the cherry growers' meeting and a number of others held for county farmers recently.

Expansion of the 4-H program and increasing membership in senior extension were announced as among the objectives for the coming year. Mrs. Houck reported on the activities of her home economics clubs during the past year. Following her talk President Brown made a statement for the executive committee expressing the appreciation of the board for Mrs. Houck's "excellent work during the past ten years."

Refreshments were served the board members following the meeting by Mrs. Howard Schwartz, Littlestown; Mrs. Banks E. Benner, Fairfield, and Mrs. E. E. Nell, York Springs, the women members of the executive group.

MONDAY, TUESDAY
Hailed by literary critics as the most delightfully human story to be told by an American writer in many years, "My Brother Talks to Horses" was adapted to the screen for "Butch" Jenkins by author Morton Thompson. The new M-G-M picture opens at the Majestic theatre.

Two other rapidly climbing players fill the romantic roles of the story. Peter Lawford plays "Butch's" older brother, Beverly Tyler plays his winsome girl friend.

The cast also boasts three veteran character players in the persons of Edward Arnold, comic Charlie Ruggles and Spring Byington.

WEDNESDAY
One of the most fascinating mysteries of the cinema season is unraveled in the new Seymour Nebenzal drama, "The Chase," which plays at the Majestic theatre on Wednesday thru United Artists release. Starring in the film is Robert Cummings with the lovely French actress, Michele Morgan, in the feminine lead.

Cummings plays the role of Chuck, a penniless and unhappy derelict who discovers a wallet bulging with large-sized greenbacks on one of Miami's shopping streets. He returns it to its owner (Steve Cochran) and for his honesty is awarded the job of chauffeur on the man's luxurious Florida estate.

Cochran turns out to be a ruthless and strange personality, equally matched by his bodyguard, played by Peter Lorre. There is a queer, frightening atmosphere about the entire house, and when Lorna, Cochran's wife (played by Michele Morgan) begs him to help her escape to Havana, Cummings agrees.

THURSDAY
"Millie's Daughter," Donald Henderson Clarke's searing bestseller about turbulent youth, has been brought to flaming life on the screen by Columbia in the picture of the same name which plays Thursday at the Majestic theatre. Romance, drama and comedy have been mixed in just the right proportions by Edward Huebsch, who did the adaptation and screenplay, to provide an entertaining film. Featured players are attractive Gladys George as Millie; beautiful blonde newcomer Gay Nelson in the title role; Paul Campbell as the male lead, and Ruth Donnelly as Millie's companion and confidante.

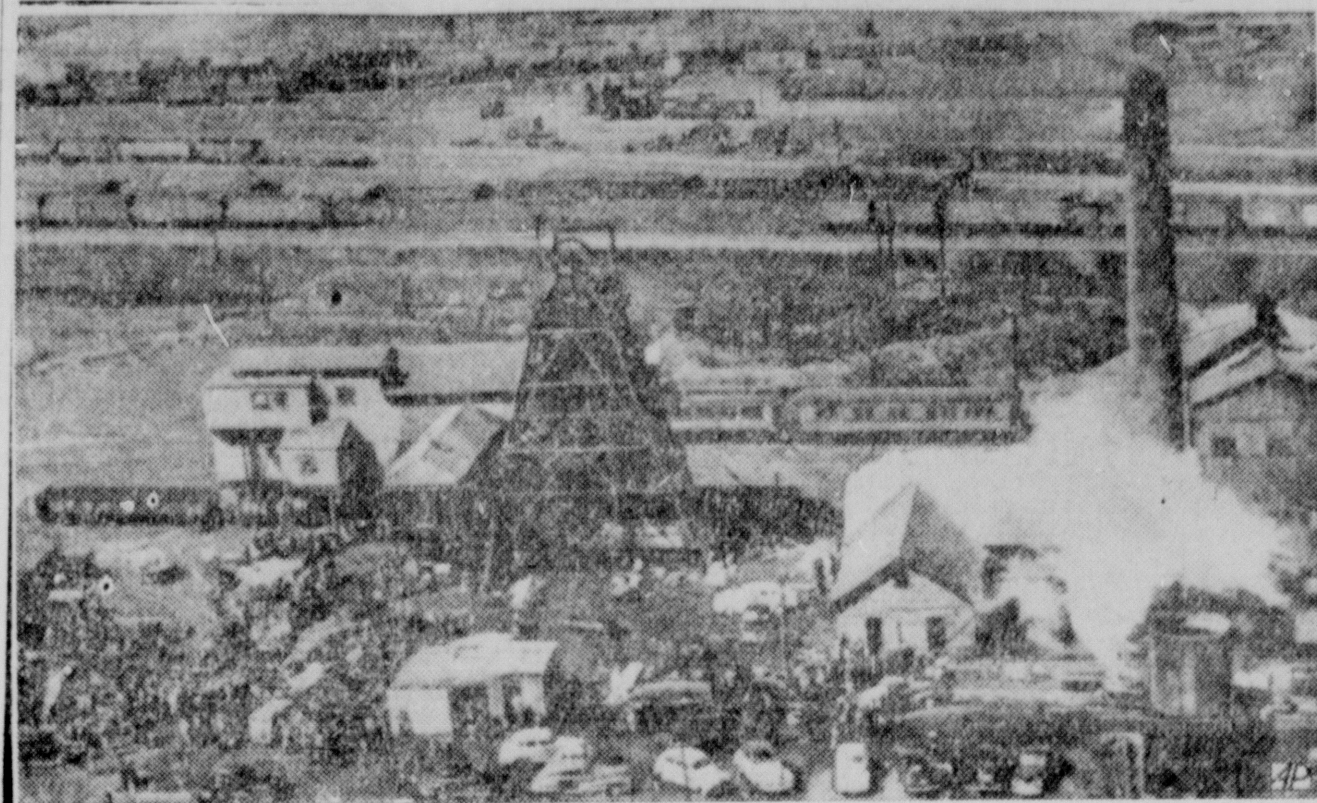

FRIDAY, SATURDAY
Wallace Beery and Edward Arnold are teamed for the first time on the screen in "The Mighty McGurk," attraction at the Majestic theatre Friday and Saturday.

Arnold plays a hardboiled role as the owner of a tough saloon who has blackmailed Beery, playing an ex-prizefighter, for nearly twenty years. He also plays the father of comely Dorothy Patrick, the picture's romantic interest.

In "The Mighty McGurk" Arnold joins an important cast of supporting players, including Dean Stockwell, Aline MacMahon and Cameron Mitchell.

East Berlin
East Berlin.—Mr. and Mrs. Raymond B. Stambaugh, Paradise township, near here, observed their fifteenth wedding anniversary on Wednesday. The couple are the parents of one daughter, Ruthanna, a freshman at the local high school. Mr. Stambaugh is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert W. Stambaugh.

Mrs. Mervin D. Jacobs and daughter, Nancy-Lou, R. 2, made a trip to York during the week.
